Performance review

The Fund was up 1.4% for the month, ahead of the S&P/ASX Small Ordinaries Accumulation Index which returned 0.9%, although it was shaded by the S&P/ASX Small Industrials Accumulation Index which returned 1.9% in January.

Megaport (MP1, +38.2%) rallied after a stronger than expected 2Q24 update showed the business tracking ahead of profit expectations and reaffirmed the rebuild of its sales team is largely complete, with this expected to drive an improvement in sales momentum into FY25. GQG Partners (GQG, +10.3%) continued to re-rate driven by ongoing impressive performance by its four key strategies, solid investment inflows and improved sentiment towards listed fund managers. Mineral Resources (MIN, -14.4%) came under pressure as the lithium price continued to fall driven by moderating electric vehicle penetration rates and lingering concerns about oversupply in the battery metal market. MIN printed a solid quarterly update and ought to be catalyst rich heading into H2FY24 with the Onslow iron ore project ramping up, and its Perth basin gas business reaching key milestones.

Outlook

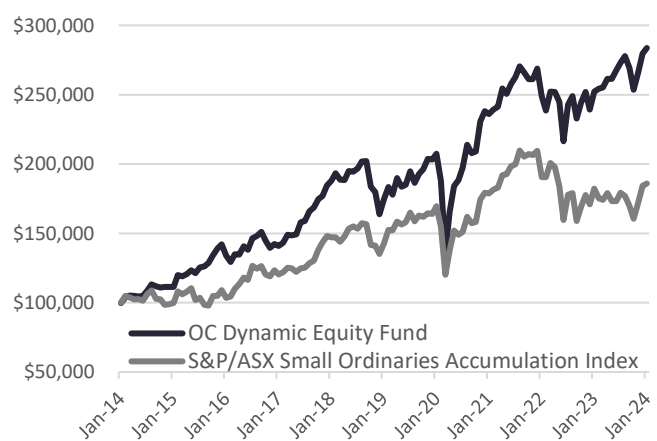

After a strong finish to calendar year 2023, global equity markets trended higher in January with inflation continuing to moderate in key economies including the US and Australia and employment markets remaining resilient. This remains consistent with the view that a soft landing is playing out.

The US economy remains robust, with unemployment remaining at 3.7% in January, and US consumer confidence printing at a five month high in December. Core Personal Consumption Expenditure (PCE) inflation, on a six-month annualised basis, registered at 1.9% in December, trailing the Federal Reserve's (the Fed's) 2% target for a second month. At its Open Market Committee meeting in late January, the Fed tempered market expectations of a March rate cut by suggesting that more information was still required before it could declare victory over inflation. Bond markets reacted by pushing out the first US rate cut into May. Notwithstanding this, reflecting on the robust nature of the US economy and ongoing moderation in inflation Fed Chairman Jerome Powell conceded: "Let's be honest, this is a good economy."

On a domestic front, inflation moderated ahead of consensus expectations in January with the Consumer Price Index (CPI) cooling to a two-year low of 4.1%. The squeeze from higher interest rates on household incomes and discretionary spending is delivering an economic slowdown. Consumer spending is slowing with retail sales declining 2.7% month on month in December. Cyclical stocks have rallied in Australia recently in anticipation of rate cuts in the second half of this calendar year. In our view, it is still too early to price this in domestically and we remain cautious on discretionary stocks ahead of the February results.

The February reporting season is now under way and the investment team remains confident that the Fund's holdings are well placed to meet or exceed the market's expectations.
